

Because They Follow Your Every Move

Engaging Employees

Why is employee engagement important? Research clearly points to the cost for the organization that tolerates active dis-engagement. Learn how to identify areas of concern in your organization and discover strategies to increase engagement for positive workplace culture and strong results.

Participants will learn to:

- Understand the cost of active disengagement to an organization
- Learn about what strong engagement looks like and how to measure it
- Understand what causes employees to disengage
- New tools to improve engagements and how to choose the appropriate approach to address a situation
- Use work-specific situations to learn how to have personal positive impact

This course is designed for:

- New Managers with limited leadership training
- Leaders who want to improve workplace culture
- Managers working in new environments
- Leaders working in situations with unclear direction
- Supervisors/Managers responsible for individual and team performance
